What are students' favourite Deliveroo orders?

Deliveroo data reveals students are big on burgers, with the classic comfort food the most popular cuisine ordered in the last year. But it's not all indulgence - cucumbers have surprisingly taken the top spot for the most popular grocery orders amongst students, followed by eggs, fruit and avocados. Whether it's a TikTok-inspired salad using fresh ingredients, a midnight snack run or stocking up on essentials students are mixing convenience with healthier choices.

When do students like to eat?

Sunday is the most popular day to get an order in, with 8pm the peak time for student deliveries - ideal for winding down after a weekend of socialising or gearing up for the week ahead.

On top of that, students can enjoy £90 in Deliveroo vouchers - that's £15 a month for six months - as long as they make 20 qualifying transactions each month.

What's more, if students across UK sign up to Deliveroo Students at the start of term, they will pay no delivery charges with Deliveroo Plus Silver on takeaway orders over £15 (restaurants) or £25 (grocery and retail shops) and can also access exclusive restaurant and grocery offers all year round.

Martin Turner, Head of Personal Current Accounts, Bank of Scotland said: "We know student life can be hectic and expensive, so we've packed this account with real value. From £100 cash in your pocket to six months of Deliveroo vouchers, it's our best student offer yet. Whether it's burgers - the most popular Deliveroo cuisine by students - or a healthy cucumber snack – the number one shopping choice (yes, really), we're helping students fuel their studies and enjoy their downtime."

"As a parent myself, I know first-hand how exciting and a little overwhelming - this time of year can be. My own son is preparing to head off to university this autumn, so our household is currently a flurry of packing lists, form filling and last-minute advice. It's a big milestone, not just for students but for families too."
