

Lloyds bolsters its Infrastructure and Project Finance division

Lloyds has appointed Trusha Pillay as a new Managing Director in its Infrastructure and Project Finance team.

Trusha will focus on expanding Lloyds' debt advisory and debt structuring business while supporting the bank's clients across core and emerging infrastructure and power related sectors in the UK, US and Europe. Trusha will report to Tony Hable, Managing Director, Head of Infrastructure and Project Finance.

At both BNP Paribas and MUFG, Trusha held senior roles in project and infrastructure finance where she led the structured capital markets offerings. She has more than 20 years' experience in the sector, including previous roles at The Royal Bank of Scotland and Clifford Chance LLP in London.

Tony Hable, Managing Director, Head of Infrastructure and Project Finance at Lloyds said: "Trusha brings a rare combination of structuring expertise, capital markets experience and international perspective. Her appointment further strengthens our leadership team and reflects our focus on continuing to build capability in areas where clients are looking for long-term, trusted banking partners."

Trusha Pillay, Managing Director, Infrastructure and Project Finance at Lloyds said: "Lloyds has built a strong infrastructure offering with a clear focus on long-term client relationships. I'm looking forward to contributing to this energetic, driven business as it continues to grow and broaden its product offering and geographic reach."

Ends

Notes

About Lloyds' support for businesses

- Lloyds Corporate & Institutional Banking maintains active relationships with two-thirds of the FTSE 350, supporting clients with annual turnover in excess of £100m.
- Alongside its well-established sector focus, the team supports clients through its leading green financing capability to support more clients with their transition plans.
- Lloyds supports its clients with core banking solutions such as lending, deposits, transaction banking and risk management services. It also provides extensive expertise in capital markets, financial markets and private equity, all of which aim to meet the varying and often complex needs of its clients.

Contact